

Finally, the Toronto stock market, the TSX, has returned to where it started the year and is looking to break out to new all-time highs also.

So stock market declines are always part of the picture but you certainly prefer to see pullbacks occur in markets that demonstrate strong leadership rather than otherwise. The US has a mid-term election in November that always gathers some attention. In the meantime, we will continue to see if the strength of this market will continue or not.

Please call or email with any questions

Point & Figure Charts and stock market data provided by Nasdaq Dorsey Wright

Disclaimer Notice: This publication is solely the work of Michael Farrell for the private information of his clients. Although the author is a Manulife Securities Advisor, he is not a financial analyst at Manulife Securities Incorporated (“Manulife Securities”). This is not an official publication of Manulife Securities. The views, opinions and recommendations are those of the author alone and they may not necessarily be those of Manulife Securities. This publication is not an offer to sell or a solicitation of an offer to buy any securities. This publication is not meant to provide legal, accounting or account advice. As each situation is different, you should seek advice based on your specific circumstances. Please call to arrange for an appointment. The information contained herein was obtained from sources believed to be reliable; however, no representation or warranty, express or implied, is made by the writer, Manulife Securities or any other person as to its accuracy, completeness or correctness.