ITEM 4 – Other Business Activities

The financial advisor is engaged in rental real estate and property management through outside entity Exit 1 Enterprises, LLC, which he owns. A portion of his time each week is dedicated to this activity outside of securities trading hours and he can earn other compensation when acting in this separate capacity. This creates a conflict of interest as there is an incentive to recommend use of this outside service based on compensation received. CFS addresses this conflict of interest through disclosure and adherence to its Code of Ethics.

ITEM 5 – Additional Compensation

Outside of his ordinary compensation earned from his position with CFS, as described in Item 4 above, Mr. Brockmeier receives normal and customary compensation through his rental real estate and property management business.

ITEM 6 – Supervision

Your financial advisor's activities are supervised by one or more individuals working in the financial advisor's office and/or a member of CFS' supervision team. The supervisor provides ongoing training and support to your financial advisor and answers questions about providing financial planning or investment advice to clients. The supervisor also reviews the financial advisor's activities through CFS' client relationship management system, business submission reviews, e-mail monitoring and correspondence reviews. The person responsible for supervising the financial advisor's advisory activities, Michael Seese, Chief Compliance Officer, can be reached at 304-422-3531.
