PULLING BACK THE CURTAIN ON HOW WE ASSIST YOU IN REACHING YOUR GOALS!

Our mission at Wildes Financial Strategies is to help you and your loved ones wisely steward the assets God has blessed you with, leaving a lasting legacy for generations to come. We believe one of the most powerful ways to achieve this is through education, building financial literacy that empowers making wise decisions now and in the future. Our team takes great pride in the opportunity to guide you toward your financial goals. Just as importantly, we are committed to helping equip you with the knowledge and resources to become strong stewards yourselves.

In support of that mission, we recently launched a new event series called Wisdom = Wealth, to assist families in growing their financial understanding across generations.

Last month, we kicked off our series with a special session for high school students and their parents aimed at preparing them for college expenses and to reveal the positive impact that making smart financial choices early on in life can have in the future.

We were thrilled by the turnout and grateful for the positive feedback we received. The success of this event reinforced our understanding of the importance of financial literacy.

In case you missed the launch of our Wisdom = Wealth series, don't worry. We're excited to announce that we're already planning future events and would love to have you join us. Keep an eye out for upcoming details.
