

Avoiding Mistakes in a Divorce in 5 Easy Steps

Retirement accounts and divorce. When a divorce occurs, the financial assets of a couple, including their retirement accounts, are often split. If mistakes are made during this process, the stress of a divorce can be compounded when one or both spouses find that they are subject to unnecessary taxes or penalties.

- 1. IRAs in divorce. To properly divide an IRA as a result of a divorce, specific language on the structure of “who gets what” should be included in the marital settlement agreement (MSA) or other divorce agreement. A copy of this executed agreement should be given to the IRA custodian. The money should NOT simply be withdrawn from the IRA and given to the other spouse, as this would be treated as a taxable distribution for the IRA owner. The funds should instead be transferred to the receiving spouse’s IRA.
- 2. ERISA plans in divorce. ERISA plans can’t be split by an MSA or divorce agreement. They require a special court order, known as a Qualified Domestic Relations Order (QDRO). Once a QDRO has been issued, it should be sent to the ERISA plan’s administrator. The terms of the plan will determine when the spouse receives the funds. In some plans, a lump-sum distribution will be available immediately, while in other plans, benefits may not be payable until the ex-spouse has a triggering event.
- 3. What to do with the received funds. If you are receiving a distribution pursuant to a QDRO, you will want to consider if you will be using any of the funds prior to age 59 ½. Funds received directly from a plan under a QDRO are exempt from the 10% penalty. If you roll those funds over to an IRA and later take a distribution prior to age 59 ½, the 10% early distribution penalty will apply.
- 4. Name new/update beneficiaries. One of the most common mistakes after a divorce is the failure to properly update beneficiary forms. This is NOT something that should be overlooked. There have been many documented cases where a failure to properly update beneficiary forms led to an ex-spouse receiving funds that were intended for children or even a new spouse. DON’T let this happen to you.
- 5. Reassess retirement preparedness. For many, a divorce is an emotionally draining and traumatic event. But for some, the emotional impact is compounded by a significant change to personal finances. So just like any other major life event, it’s beneficial to reevaluate your retirement and financial plans to determine the best course of action.

1419 Highland Avenue, Manhattan Beach, CA 90266 ☎ 310.643.7472 🌐 www.CRAadvisors.com

Investment advisory services offered through Mutual Advisors, LLC DBA California Retirement Advisors, a SEC registered investment adviser. Securities offered through Mutual Securities, Inc., member FINRA/SIPC. Mutual Securities, Inc. and Mutual Advisors, LLC are affiliated companies. CA Insurance license #0B09076. Mutual Advisors, LLC and California Retirement Advisors takes no responsibility for the current accuracy of this information. Ed Slott and Company LLC is not affiliated with Mutual Advisors. © 2026 Ed Slott and Company LLC. Reprinted with permission. Ed Slott and Company LLC takes no responsibility for the current accuracy of this information.

This is being provided for informational purposes only and should not be construed as a recommendation to buy or sell any specific securities. Past performance is no guarantee of future results, and all investing involves risk. The views expressed are those of California Retirement Advisors (CRA) and do not necessarily reflect the views of Mutual Advisors, LLC or any of its affiliates. CRA, nor any of its members, are tax accountants or legal attorneys, and do not provide tax or legal advice.

For tax or legal advice, you should consult your tax or legal professional.