B. Types of Advisory Services

Portfolio Management Services

Our firm provides continuous advice to our clients regarding the discretionary and non-discretionary investment management of client funds based on the individual needs of the client. Through personal discussions and questionnaires designed to assess a client's risk using qualitative and quantitative questions relating to behavior aversion to risk, timeline to and through retirement and the amount of current and projected assets, goals and objectives based on a client's circumstances are established. We develop a client's personal Investment Policy Statement (IPS), which formalizes the investment policy for all the accounts under management and create and manage a portfolio based on that policy. Further description of discretionary and non-discretionary engagements is included in Item 16 further below.

Portfolio management services include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Investment strategy
- Asset allocation
- Risk tolerance
- Personal investment policy
- Asset selection
- Regular portfolio monitoring

GAMLLC seeks to provide that investment decisions are made in accordance with the fiduciary duties owed to its accounts and without consideration of GAMLLC's economic, investment or other financial interests. To meet its fiduciary obligations, GAMLLC attempts to avoid, among other things, investment or trading practices that systematically advantage or disadvantage certain client portfolios, and accordingly, GAMLLC's policy is to seek fair and equitable allocation of investment opportunities/transactions among its clients to avoid favoring one client over another over time. It is GAMLLC's policy to allocate investment opportunities and transactions it identifies as being appropriate and prudent among its clients on a fair and equitable basis over time.

GAMLLC may direct clients to third-party investment advisers to manage all or a portion of the client's assets. Before selecting other advisers for clients, GAMLLC will always ensure those other advisers are properly licensed or registered as an investment adviser. GAMLLC conducts due diligence on any third-party investment adviser, which may involve one or more of the following: phone calls, meetings and review of the third-party adviser's performance and investment strategy. GAMLLC then makes investments with a third-party investment adviser by referring the client to the third-party adviser. GAMLLC may also allocate among one or more private equity funds or private equity fund advisers. GAMLLC will review the ongoing performance of the third-party adviser as a portion of the client's portfolio.

Clients may impose reasonable restrictions on investing in certain securities, types of securities, or industry sectors.

Payment of Pension Consulting Fees

Asset-based pension consulting fees are withdrawn directly from the client's accounts with client's written authorization on a quarterly basis or may be invoiced and billed directly to the client on a quarterly basis. Clients may select the method in which they are billed. Generally, pension consulting fees are paid in advance. There are certain circumstances where fees can be paid in arrears as indicated within the pension consulting agreement.

Fixed pension consulting fees are paid via check or out of plan assets as per the client's discretion. Generally, these fees are paid quarterly in advance but never more than six months in advance, with the remainder due upon presentation of the plan.

Payment of Selection of Other Advisers Fees

The timing, frequency, and method of paying fees for selection of third-party managers will depend on the specific third-party adviser selected.

Payment of Financial Planning Fees

Financial planning fees are paid via check or agreed upon electronic payment service.

Fixed financial planning fees are paid 50% in advance, but never more than six months in advance, with the remainder due upon presentation of the plan.

C. Client Responsibility For Third Party Fees

Clients are responsible for the payment of all third-party fees (i.e. custodian fees, brokerage fees, mutual fund fees, transaction fees, etc.). Those fees are separate and distinct from the fees and expenses charged by GAMLLC. Please see Item 12 of this brochure regarding broker-dealer/custodian.

D. Prepayment of Fees

GAMLLC collects fees in advance. Refunds for fees paid in advance but not yet earned will be refunded on a prorated basis and returned to the client via check or return deposit back into the client's account. Clients are required to provide 30 days written notice of their intent to terminate the contract. Accounts that are transferred or removed from GAMLLC's advisor access at the custodian/broker-dealer without written notice of termination will not receive a prorated refund of fees.

For all asset-based fees paid in advance, the fee refunded will be equal to the balance of the fees collected in advance minus the daily rate* times the number of days elapsed in the billing period up to and including the day of termination. - Trusts
- Pension and Profit Sharing Plans

Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, & Risk of Loss

A. Methods of Analysis and Investment Strategies

Methods of Analysis

GAMLLC employs both top-down and bottom-up analysis in constructing client portfolios. Our top-down analysis includes macroeconomic analysis, geopolitical and capital market conditions, business regulations and industry developments. Based on this information, we then select the securities that will be placed in each of our portfolios, provided they meet our fundamental and technical analysis.

Our bottom-up analysis includes, but is not limited to, analyzing companies or funds and evaluating their relative metrics, such as price-to-earnings, price-to-book, price-to-sales. We also analyze company specific information such as long-term earnings trends, dividend payout policies, revenue, operating income and cash flow measures, as well as short term catalysts when determining whether to make an investment in a particular stock or fund.

Technical analysis is a component of our analysis but is not a driver in ultimately whether we decide to invest in a security or not. Technical analysis may be used to influence the timing of a transaction.

We implement asset allocation strategies into our portfolios to identify an appropriate ratio of securities, fixed income, and cash in an attempt to mitigate the risk of concentration in a single security, sector or asset class, which is suitable to the client's investment goals and risk tolerance.

We evaluate the experience and track record of the manager of an open-end mutual fund, closed-end fund or ETF in an attempt to determine if that manager has demonstrated an ability to successfully invest over a period of time and under different economic conditions. We also evaluate the underlying securities in a mutual fund or ETF in an attempt to determine if there is significant overlap in the underlying investments held in another fund in the client's portfolio and monitor the funds or ETFs in an attempt to determine if they are continuing to follow their stated investment strategy.

A risk of fund and/or ETF analysis is that, as in all securities investments, past performance does not guarantee future results. A manager who has been successful may not be able to replicate that success in the future. In addition, as we do not control the underlying investments in a fund or ETF, managers of different funds held by the client may purchase the same security, increasing the risk to the client if that security were to fall in value. There is also a risk that a manager may deviate from the stated investment mandate or strategy of the fund or ETF, which could make the holding(s) less suitable for the client's portfolio.

Investment Strategies

GAMLLC uses long term trading, short term trading, short sales, margin transactions and options trading (including covered options, uncovered options, or spreading strategies).

Investing in securities involves a risk of loss that you, as a client, should be prepared to bear.

B. Material Risks Involved

Methods of Analysis

Charting analysis strategy involves using and comparing various charts to predict long and short term performance or market trends. The risk involved in using this method is that only past performance data is considered without using other methods to crosscheck data. Using charting analysis without other methods of analysis would be making the assumption that past performance will be indicative of future performance. This may not be the case.

Cyclical analysis assumes that the markets react in cyclical patterns which, once identified, can be leveraged to provide performance. The risks with this strategy are two-fold: 1) the markets do not always repeat cyclical patterns; and 2) if too many investors begin to implement this strategy, then it changes the very cycles these investors are trying to exploit.

Fundamental analysis concentrates on factors that determine a company's value and expected future earnings. This strategy would normally encourage equity purchases in stocks that are undervalued or priced below their perceived value. The risk assumed is that the market will fail to reach expectations of perceived value.

Modern portfolio theory assumes that investors are risk averse, meaning that given two portfolios that offer the same expected return, investors will prefer the less risky one. Thus, an investor will take on increased risk only if compensated by higher expected returns. Conversely, an investor who wants higher expected returns must accept more risk. The exact trade-off will be the same for all investors, but different investors will evaluate the trade-off differently based on individual risk aversion characteristics. The implication is that a rational investor will not invest in a portfolio if a second portfolio exists with a more favorable risk-expected return profile – i.e., if for that level of risk an alternative portfolio exists which has better expected returns.

Quantitative analysis Investment strategies using quantitative models may perform differently than expected as a result of, among other things, the factors used in the models, the weight placed on each factor, changes from the factors' historical trends, and technical issues in the construction and implementation of the models.

Technical analysis attempts to predict a future stock price or direction based on market trends. The assumption is that the market follows discernible patterns and if these patterns can be identified then a prediction can be made. The risk is that markets do not always follow patterns and relying solely on this method may not take into account new patterns that emerge over time.

Investment Strategies

GAMLLC's use of short sales, margin transactions and options trading generally holds greater risk, and clients should be aware that there is a material risk of loss using any of those strategies.

Long term trading is designed to capture market rates of both return and risk. Due to its nature, the long-term investment strategy can expose clients to various types of risk that will typically surface at various intervals during the time the client owns the investments. These risks include but are not limited to inflation (purchasing power) risk, interest rate risk, economic risk, market risk, and political/regulatory risk.

Margin transactions use leverage that is borrowed from a brokerage firm as collateral. When losses occur, the value of the margin account may fall below the brokerage firm's threshold thereby triggering a margin call. This may force the account holder to either allocate more funds to the account or sell assets on a shorter time frame than desired.

Options transactions involve a contract to purchase a security at a given price, not necessarily at market value, depending on the market. This strategy includes the risk that an option may expire out of the money resulting in minimal or no value, as well as the possibility of leveraged loss of trading capital due to the leveraged nature of stock options.

Selection of Other Advisers: Although GAMLLC will seek to select only money managers who will invest clients' assets with the highest level of integrity, GAMLLC's selection process cannot ensure that money managers will perform as desired and GAMLLC will have no control over the day-to-day operations of any of its selected money managers. GAMLLC would not necessarily be aware of certain activities at the underlying money manager level, including without limitation a money manager's engaging in unreported risks, investment "style drift" or even regulatory breaches or fraud.

Short sales entail the possibility of infinite loss. An increase in the applicable securities' prices will result in a loss and, over time, the market has historically trended upward.

Short term trading risks include liquidity, economic stability, and inflation, in addition to the long term trading risks listed above. Frequent trading can affect investment performance, particularly through increased brokerage and other transaction costs and taxes.

Investing in securities involves a risk of loss that you, as a client, should be prepared to bear.

C. Risks of Specific Securities Utilized

GAMLLC's use of short sales, margin transactions and options trading generally hold greater risk of capital loss. Clients should be aware that there is a material risk of loss using any investment strategy. The investment types listed below (leaving aside Treasury Inflation Protected/Inflation Linked Bonds) are not guaranteed or insured by the FDIC or any other government agency.

Mutual Funds: Investing in mutual funds carries the risk of capital loss and thus you may lose money investing in mutual funds. All mutual funds have costs that lower investment returns. The funds can be of bond "fixed income" nature (lower risk) or stock "equity" nature.

Equity investment generally refers to buying shares of stocks in return for receiving a future payment of dividends and/or capital gains if the value of the stock increases. The value of equity securities may fluctuate in response to specific situations for each company, industry conditions and the general economic environments.

Fixed income investments generally pay a return on a fixed schedule, though the amount of the payments can vary. This type of investment can include corporate and government debt securities, leveraged loans, high yield, and investment grade debt and structured products, such as mortgage and other asset-backed securities, although individual bonds may be the best known type of fixed income security.

In general, the fixed income market is volatile and fixed income securities carry interest rate risk. (As interest rates rise, bond prices usually fall, and vice versa. This effect is usually more pronounced for longer-term securities.) Fixed income securities also carry inflation risk, liquidity risk, call risk, and credit and default risks for both issuers and counterparties.

The risk of default on treasury inflation protected/inflation linked bonds is dependent upon the U.S. Treasury defaulting (extremely unlikely); however, they carry a potential risk of losing share price value, albeit rather minimal. Risks of investing in foreign fixed income securities also include the general risk of non-U.S. investing described below.

Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs): An ETF is an investment fund traded on stock exchanges, similar to stocks. Investing in ETFs carries the risk of capital loss (sometimes up to a 100% loss in the case of a stock holding bankruptcy).

Areas of concern include the lack of transparency in products and increasing complexity, conflicts of interest and the possibility of inadequate regulatory compliance. Risks in investing in ETFs include trading risks, liquidity and shutdown risks, risks associated with a change in authorized participants and non-participation of authorized participants, risks that trading price differs from indicative net asset value (NAV), or price fluctuation and disassociation from the index being tracked.

With regard to trading risks, regular trading adds cost to your portfolio thus counteracting the low fees that one of the typical benefits of ETFs. Additionally, regular trading to beneficially “time the market” is difficult to achieve. Even paid fund managers struggle to do this every year, with the majority failing to beat the relevant indexes.

With regard to liquidity and shutdown risks, not all ETFs have the same level of liquidity. Since ETFs are at least as liquid as their underlying assets, trading conditions are more accurately reflected in implied liquidity rather than the average daily volume of the ETF itself. Implied liquidity is a measure of what can potentially be traded in ETFs based on its underlying assets. ETFs are subject to market volatility and the risks of their underlying securities, which may include the risks associated with investing in smaller companies, foreign securities, commodities, and fixed income investments (as applicable).

Foreign securities in particular are subject to interest rate, currency exchange rate, economic, and political risks, all of which are magnified in emerging markets. ETFs that target a small universe of securities, such as a specific region or market sector, are generally subject to greater market volatility, as well as to the specific risks associated with that sector, region, or other focus.

ETFs that use derivatives, leverage, or complex investment strategies are subject to additional risks. Precious Metal ETFs (e.g., Gold, Silver, or Palladium Bullion backed “electronic shares” not physical metal) specifically may be negatively impacted by several unique factors, among them (1) large sales by the official sector which own a significant portion of aggregate world holdings in gold and other precious metals, (2) a significant increase in hedging activities by producers of gold or other precious metals, (3) a significant change in the attitude of speculators and investors.

The return of an index ETF is usually different from that of the index it tracks because of fees, expenses, and tracking error. An ETF may trade at a premium or discount to its net asset value (NAV) (or indicative value in the case of exchange-traded notes). The degree of liquidity can vary significantly from one ETF to another and losses may be magnified if no liquid market exists for the ETF's shares when attempting to sell them. Each ETF has a unique risk profile, detailed in its prospectus, offering circular, or similar material, which should be considered carefully when making investment decisions.

Private equity funds carry certain risks. Capital calls will be made on short notice, and the failure to meet capital calls can result in significant adverse consequences, including but not limited to a total loss of investment.

Private placements carry a substantial risk as they are subject to less regulation than are publicly offered securities, the market to resell these assets under applicable securities laws may be illiquid, due to restrictions, and the liquidation may be taken at a substantial discount to the underlying value or result in the entire loss of the value of such assets.

Options are contracts to purchase a security at a given price, risking that an option may expire out of the money resulting in minimal or no value. An uncovered option is a type of options contract that is not backed by an offsetting position that would help mitigate risk. The risk for a "naked" or uncovered put is not unlimited, whereas the potential loss for an uncovered call option is limitless. Spread option positions entail buying and selling multiple options on the same underlying security, but with different strike prices or expiration dates, which helps limit the risk of other option trading strategies. Option transactions also involve risks including but not limited to economic risk, market risk, sector risk, idiosyncratic risk, political/regulatory risk, inflation (purchasing power) risk and interest rate risk.

Non-U.S. securities present certain risks such as currency fluctuation, political and economic change, social unrest, changes in government regulation, differences in accounting and the lesser degree of accurate public information available.

Past performance is not indicative of future results. Investing in securities involves a risk of loss that you, as a client, should be prepared to bear.

Clients should be aware that insurance services resulting in the purchase of a product pay a commission approved by the applicable state insurance department regulator when products are filed for sale in that state. C. Investing Personal Money in the Same Securities as Clients

From time to time, representatives of GAMLLC may buy or sell securities for themselves that they also recommend to clients. This may provide an opportunity for representatives of GAMLLC to buy or sell the same securities before or after recommending the same securities to clients resulting in representatives profiting off the recommendations they provide to clients. Such transactions may create a conflict of interest. GAMLLC will always document any transactions that could be construed as conflicts of interest and will never engage in trading that operates to the client's disadvantage when similar securities are being bought or sold.

D. Trading Securities At/Around the Same Time as Clients' Securities

From time to time, representatives of GAMLLC may buy or sell securities for themselves at or around the same time as clients. This may provide an opportunity for representatives of GAMLLC to buy or sell securities before or after recommending securities to clients resulting in representatives profiting off the recommendations they provide to clients. Such transactions may create a conflict of interest; however, GAMLLC will never engage in trading that operates to the client's disadvantage if representatives of GAMLLC buy or sell securities at or around the same time as clients.

Item 12: Brokerage Practices

A. Factors Used to Select Custodians and/or Broker/Dealers

Custodians/broker-dealers will be recommended based on GAMLLC's duty to seek "best execution," which is the obligation to seek execution of securities transactions for a client on the most favorable terms for the client under the circumstances. Clients will not necessarily pay the lowest commission or commission equivalent, and GAMLLC may also consider the market expertise and research access provided by the broker-dealer/custodian, including but not limited to access to written research, oral communication with analysts, admittance to research conferences and other resources provided by the brokers that may aid in GAMLLC's research efforts. GAMLLC will never charge a premium or commission on transactions, beyond the actual cost imposed by the broker-dealer/custodian.

GAMLLC recommends Schwab Institutional, a division of Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. and TD Ameritrade Institutional, a division of TD Ameritrade, Inc., and MTG, LLC dba Betterment Securities. Member FINRA/SIPC.

Betterment Securities is responsible for execution of securities transactions and maintains custody of customer assets. Betterment Securities exercises no discretion in determining if and when trades are placed; it places trades only at the direction of Betterment. Clients should understand that the appointment of Betterment Securities as the broker for their accounts held at Betterment may result in their receiving less favorable trade executions than may be available through the use of broker-dealers that are not affiliated with Betterment. If your Clients do not wish to place assets with or execute trades through Betterment Securities, then Betterment cannot manage your Client accounts on the Betterment for Advisors platform.

Additional information regarding Betterment Securities can be found on FINRA's BrokerCheck.

1. Research and Other Soft-Dollar Benefits

While GAMLLC has no formal soft dollar program in which soft dollars are used to pay for third party services, GAMLLC may receive research, products, or other services from custodians and broker-dealers in connection with client securities transactions ("soft dollar benefits"). GAMLLC may enter into soft-dollar arrangements consistent with (and not outside of) the safe harbor contained in Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended. There can be no assurance that any particular client will benefit from soft dollar research, whether or not the client's transactions paid for it, and GAMLLC does not seek to allocate benefits to client accounts proportionate to any soft dollar credits generated by the accounts. GAMLLC benefits by not having to produce or pay for the research, products or services, and GAMLLC will have an incentive to recommend a broker-dealer based on receiving research or services. Clients should be aware that GAMLLC's acceptance of soft dollar benefits may result in higher commissions charged to the client.

2. Brokerage for Client Referrals

GAMLLC receives no referrals from a broker-dealer or third party in exchange for using that broker-dealer or third party.

3. Clients Directing Which Broker/Dealer/Custodian to Use

GAMLLC may permit clients to direct it to execute transactions through a specified broker-dealer. If a client directs brokerage, then the client will be required to acknowledge in writing that the client's direction with respect to the use of brokers supersedes any authority granted to GAMLLC to select brokers; this direction may result in higher commissions, which may result in a disparity between free and directed accounts; the client may be unable to participate in block trades (unless GAMLLC is able to engage in "step outs"); and trades for the client and other directed accounts may be executed after trades for free accounts, which may result in less favorable prices, particularly for illiquid securities or during volatile market conditions. Not all investment advisers allow their clients to direct brokerage.

B. Aggregating (Block) Trading for Multiple Client Accounts

If GAMLLC buys or sells the same securities on behalf of more than one client, then it may (but would be under no obligation to) aggregate or bunch such securities in a single transaction for multiple clients in order to seek more favorable prices, lower brokerage commissions, or more efficient execution. In such case, GAMLLC would place an aggregate order with the broker on behalf of all such clients in order to ensure fairness for all clients; provided, however, that trades would be reviewed periodically to ensure that accounts are not systematically disadvantaged by this policy. GAMLLC would determine the appropriate number of shares and select the appropriate brokers consistent with its duty to seek best execution, except for those accounts with specific brokerage direction (if any).

If a block trade is not fully executed, the securities will be allocated to each client's account on a pro rata basis, except when doing so would create an unintended adverse consequence (For example, $\frac{1}{4}$ of a share or a position in the account of less than 1%).

Item 13: Review of Accounts

A. Frequency and Nature of Periodic Reviews and Who Makes Those Reviews

All client accounts for GAMLLC's advisory services provided on an ongoing basis are reviewed at least Quarterly by Joseph M Gordon, Managing Member, with regard to clients' respective investment policies and risk tolerance levels. All accounts at GAMLLC are assigned to this reviewer.

All financial planning accounts are reviewed upon financial plan creation and plan delivery by Joseph M Gordon, Managing Member. Financial planning clients are provided a one-time financial plan concerning their financial situation. After the presentation of the plan, there are no further reports. Clients may request additional plans or reports for a fee. Clients may pay a renewal fee to GAMLLC to monitor and update the financial plan, which is generally 50% to 70% of the original stated fee.

B. Factors That Will Trigger a Non-Periodic Review of Client Accounts

Reviews may be triggered by material market, economic or political events, or by changes in client's financial situations (such as retirement, termination of employment, physical move, or inheritance).

With respect to financial plans, GAMLLC's services will generally conclude upon delivery of the financial plan.

C. Content and Frequency of Regular Reports Provided to Clients

Each client of GAMLLC's advisory services provided on an ongoing basis will receive at a minimum report on a quarterly basis detailing the client's account, including assets held, asset value, and calculation of fees. This written report will come from the custodian. GAMLLC will also provide at least quarterly a separate written statement to the client.

Each financial planning client will receive the financial plan upon completion.

Item 14: Client Referrals and Other Compensation

A. Economic Benefits Provided by Third Parties for Advice Rendered to Clients (Includes Sales Awards or Other Prizes)

GAMLLC participates in the institutional advisor program (the "Program") offered by TD Ameritrade. TD Ameritrade offers to independent investment advisor services which include custody of securities, trade execution, clearance and settlement of transactions. GAMLLC receives some benefits from TD Ameritrade through its participation in the Program.

As disclosed above, GAMLLC participates in TD Ameritrade's institutional advisor program and GAMLLC may recommend TD Ameritrade to clients for custody and brokerage services. There is no direct link between GAMLLC's participation in the Program and the investment advice it gives to its clients, although GAMLLC receives economic benefits through its participation in the Program that are typically not available to TD Ameritrade retail investors.

These benefits include the following products and services (provided without cost or at a discount): receipt of duplicate client statements and confirmations; research related products and tools; consulting services; access to a trading desk serving GAMLLC participants; access to block trading (which provides the ability to aggregate securities transactions for execution and then allocate the appropriate shares to client accounts); the ability to have GAMLLC's fees deducted directly from client accounts; access to an electronic communications network for client order entry and account information; access to mutual funds with no transaction fees and to certain institutional money managers; and discounts on compliance, marketing, research, technology, and practice management products or services provided to GAMLLC by third party vendors.

TD Ameritrade may also pay for business consulting and professional services received by GAMLLC's related persons. Some of the products and services made available by TD Ameritrade through the Program may benefit GAMLLC but may not benefit its client accounts. These products or services may assist GAMLLC in managing and administering client accounts, including accounts not maintained at TD Ameritrade.

Other services made available by TD Ameritrade are intended to help GAMLLC manage and further develop its business enterprise. The benefits received by GAMLLC or its personnel through participation in the Program do not depend on the amount of brokerage transactions directed to TD Ameritrade. As part of its fiduciary duties to clients, GAMLLC endeavors at all times to put the interests of its clients first.

Clients should be aware, however, that the receipt of economic benefits by GAMLLC or its related persons in and of itself creates a conflict of interest and may indirectly influence the GAMLLC's choice of TD Ameritrade for custody and brokerage services.

With respect to Schwab, GAMLLC receives access to Schwab's institutional trading and custody services, which are typically not available to Schwab retail investors. These services generally are available to independent investment advisers on an unsolicited basis, at no charge to them so long as a total of at least $10 million of the adviser's clients' assets are maintained in accounts at Schwab Advisor Services.

Schwab's services include brokerage services that are related to the execution of securities transactions, custody, research, including that in the form of advice, analyses and reports, and access to mutual funds and other investments that are otherwise generally available only to institutional investors or would require a significantly higher minimum initial investment.

For GAMLLC client accounts maintained in its custody, Schwab generally does not charge separately for custody services but is compensated by account holders through commissions or other transaction-related or asset-based fees for securities trades that are executed through Schwab or that settle into Schwab accounts.

Schwab also makes available to GAMLLC other products and services that benefit GAMLLC but may not benefit its clients' accounts. These benefits may include national, regional or GAMLLC specific educational events organized and/or sponsored by Schwab Advisor Services. Other potential benefits may include occasional business entertainment of personnel of GAMLLC by Schwab Advisor Services personnel, including meals, invitations to sporting events, including golf tournaments, and other forms of entertainment, some of which may accompany educational opportunities.

Other of these products and services assist GAMLLC in managing and administering clients' accounts. These include software and other technology (and related technological training) that provide access to client account data (such as trade confirmations and account statements), facilitate trade execution (and allocation of aggregated trade orders for multiple client accounts, if applicable), provide research, pricing information and other market data, facilitate payment of GAMLLC's fees from its clients' accounts (if applicable), and assist with back-office training and support functions, recordkeeping and client reporting. Many of these services generally may be used to service all or some substantial number of GAMLLC's accounts.

Schwab Advisor Services also makes available to GAMLLC other services intended to help GAMLLC manage and further develop its business enterprise. These services may include professional compliance, legal and business consulting, publications and conferences on practice management, information technology, business succession, regulatory compliance, employee benefits providers, human capital consultants, insurance and marketing.

In addition, Schwab may make available, arrange and/or pay vendors for these types of services rendered to GAMLLC by independent third parties. Schwab Advisor Services may discount or waive fees it would otherwise charge for some of these services or pay all or a part of the fees of a third-party providing these services to GAMLLC. GAMLLC is independently owned and operated and not affiliated with Schwab.

GAMLLC will receive a non-economic benefit from Betterment Securities in the form of the support products and services it makes available to GAMLLC (and other independent investment advisors whose clients maintain their accounts at Betterment Securities). These products and services, how they benefit GAMLLC, and the related conflicts of interest are described above - see Item 12. The availability of Betterment Securities' products and services to GAMLLC is not based on GAMLLC giving particular investment advice, such as buying particular securities for its clients.

B. Compensation to Non - Advisory Personnel for Client Referrals

GAMLLC may enter into written arrangements with third parties to act as solicitors for GAMLLC's investment management services. Solicitor relationships will be fully disclosed to each Client to the extent required by applicable law. GAMLLC will ensure each solicitor is exempt, notice filed, or properly registered in all appropriate jurisdictions.

Item 15: Custody

When advisory fees are deducted directly from client accounts at client's custodian, GAMLLC will be deemed to have limited custody of client's assets and must have written authorization from the client to do so. Clients will receive all account statements and billing invoices that are required in each jurisdiction, and they should carefully review those statements for accuracy.

Item 16: Investment Discretion

GAMLLC provides discretionary and non-discretionary investment advisory services to clients. The advisory contract established with each client sets forth the discretionary authority for trading. Where investment discretion has been granted, GAMLLC generally manages the client's account and makes investment decisions without consultation with the client as to when the securities are to be bought or sold for the account, the total amount of the securities to be bought/sold, what securities to buy or sell, or the price per share. In some instances, GAMLLC's discretionary authority in making these determinations may be limited by conditions imposed by a client (in investment guidelines or objectives, or client instructions otherwise provided to GAMLLC).

Item 17: Voting Client Securities (Proxy Voting)

GAMLLC will not ask for, nor accept voting authority for client securities. Clients will receive proxies directly from the issuer of the security or the custodian. Clients should direct all proxy questions to the issuer of the security.

Item 18: Financial Information

A. Balance Sheet

GAMLLC neither requires nor solicits prepayment of more than $500 in fees per client, six months or more in advance, and therefore is not required to include a balance sheet with this brochure.

B. Financial Conditions Reasonably Likely to Impair Ability to Meet Contractual Commitments to Clients

Neither GAMLLC nor its management has any financial condition that is likely to reasonably impair GAMLLC's ability to meet contractual commitments to clients.

C. Bankruptcy Petitions in Previous Ten Years

GAMLLC has not been the subject of a bankruptcy petition in the last ten years.
